If I understand what your asking it is - If I realized already that I need to do something than why haven't I yet , and I would say to that Human nature is to push off decisions , particularly on things we are scared of like change, remember human beings are not machines

Today was a pretty good day considering...

Thank you Hashem for allowing that to happen.

I was thinking - maybe this is just because I'm desensitized...

to what?

Nothing casual about today though , I've been dealing with sustained category 5 urges since the AM , I hope not to be overwhelmed tonight..

I think your reaction is a common attitude. I definitely was like that. If you mess up it's terrible, and if you do good you just dodged a bullet. No surprise that I was always depressed - and always fell!

Your best way to have sustained success is to change your attitude about your successes. And it will change your entire life! You'll be so much happier!
